NEARLY HALF STUDENT BODY VOTES

Daily Curb Removed

A motion that Daily reports do not have to be put to the president of the SEC before publication was passed at a meeting of the SEC last night.

Moved by Clyde Kennedy and seconded by John Meagher the wording of the motion as obtained from Ralph Shackell, secretary-treasurer was as follows: "That Daily reports do not have to be put to the SEC before publication."

This motion does away with a motion passed at last week's meeting of the SEC, which was that "The president of the Students Society have presented to him all press releases for publication in the McGill Daily regarding Students Executive Council Meetings as a matter of courtesy."

In presenting the motion Mr. Kennedy asked the SEC to reconsider the resolution made at the last meeting. He said it seemed to indicate a lack of confidence in the Daily Staff, and that if these reports were going to the Council, they were going for censoring, and if the council had confidence it was not necessary.

Dave Floyer, Engineering representative, stated that the motion of last week had made it an order and the phrase "as a courtesy" might just as well be struck out, and that the motion showed a lack of confidence in Kennedy. Kennedy said that The Daily had no wish at all to show the Council in a bad light, and that he had never hesitated at any time to check reports with the SEC. He continued that in actual democratic society that there is no precedence for meetings which are open to reporters having a stipulation that reports be shown to the chairman of the meeting.

The motion was passed with three dissenting votes.

Smith to Speak on Comparative Religion

"The comparative study of Religion" will be the subject of the inaugural address by the Reverend Wilfred C. Smith, M.A., Ph.D. tonight in Moyle Hall at 8.30 p.m.

Dr. Smith is the W. M. Birks professor of Comparative Religion in McGill's Divinity faculty.

This will be the last of a series of three inaugural addresses by members of the Divinity faculty, previous addresses having been made by Dean Thomson and Dr. Slater.

Scribe Finds Some Families Won't Have Xmas Turkeys

By John Cunningham

Not everyone will eat turkey and abundance of real holly while fam-plum pudding on Christmas this year.

Eva Watzka, a student from Czechoslovakia had never even heard of turkey. "Our main celebration and dinner takes place on the night before Christmas," Miss Watzka said, "and everyone must eat fish, preferably carp. We have a wide assortment of sweets and wine. After the dinner the children get their first glimpse of the Christmas tree and their presents, which they believe the Christ Child has left. On December 6 the children also get presents. Usually a friend of the family dresses as St. Nicholas and, accompanied with the devil, questions the children to find out if they have been good. If the children have misbehaved, potatoes, onions and lumps of coal are placed in their stockings."

"Our Christmas is very like the one in Canada," said Svante Krank, a Finnish student, "except that we have our Christmas dinner on Christmas eve. It consists of cod-fish, pork, and rice pudding. On Christmas morning we always go to early morning Mass. We call Santa Claus 'Julijube Gubbe'."

"Mistletoe features the typical British Christmas," R. Curtis, an English student said. "Decorations are confined mostly to trees inside the homes. There is a great

New Forge Deadline Announced by Editors

The deadline for FORGE, McGill's literary magazine, has been extended to January 15, 1950.

The editorial board announced that there is still room for poems, stories, and articles. The deadline has been extended in hopes that students from all years and faculties would hand in material.

This year the editorial board had been increased by two honours students from the English Department, Marjorie Quayle and Don Smith, who will act in the capacity of readers. Other members of the board are: Felicity Peirs, editor, H. G. Blaik, Murray Magor, Ann Wyman and Chuck Taylor, Assistant Editors.

Continuing the policy instituted last year the editor stated that all material from members of the board is submitted under a pseudonym to avoid any possibility of partiality in the reading.

This is the last extension of the dead-line. Students are asked to address m.s.s. to The Editor, Union Tuck Shop.

Debating Team Heads for N.Y. Debates Today

A second inter-collegiate debating group will leave for New York today to debate against Barnard College, New York University, Columbia University, and City College.

Betty Sinclair, Hazel O'Brien, Mel Rothman, and Boris Bierbrier of the Debating Society will represent McGill.

A spokesman for the Society said that this tour will present a fair degree of difficulty in that three resolutions will be debated.

Rothman and Bierbrier will uphold the negative side at Columbia in the resolution "That the western nations should extend the utmost military and economic aid to the present government of Yugoslavia."

At Barnard College Miss O'Brien and Mrs. Sinclair will debate on the topic that, "Resolved, that the United States recognize the communist government of China."

All four participants will debate the nationalization issue which was the subject for debate at the recent Vermont Conference. This is the resolution, "That the United States should adopt nationalization of basic non-agricultural industries."

Miss O'Brien and Mr. Bierbrier will debate this topic with New York University; and Mrs. Sinclair and Mr. Rothman will be teamed against the City College of New York.

This is the second inter-collegiate debate away from home this year. The resolution in regard to nationalization is the national topic of student forums and debates in the U.S. this year.

Grads Hope to Share Xmas with Students

"McGill graduates are hoping to share their Christmas dinners with foreign undergraduate students and those who cannot go home for the Christmas holidays," said D. Lorne Gales, executive secretary of the Graduates' Society yesterday.

Students who are interested are asked to contact the society's headquarters at 3468 University St., B.E. 3087.

The Rotary Club and the I.O.D.E. are also planning to entertain these students.

Mexican Authority to Speak on Literature

The first of a series of lectures on Latin-American Literature will be held on Friday December 9, at 8 p.m. in room 44 of the Arts Building.

Mr. Enrique M. Loneza, head of the Mexican delegation to IOAU, will speak on "Aspects of Latin-American Literature."

Jones Tells Premeds About Early Medicine

Dr. Jonas, lecturer in philosophy at Dawson, spoke to a general meeting of the Dawson Pre-Med Society last Tuesday. He described how, in the olden days, illness was often thought of mystically until Greek times. He related how the Pythagorean School changed this by bringing to light a more logical explanation of sickness other than the manifestations of demons.

He described how Empedocles considered the world: that it was made up of earth, fire, water and air. He also told of the work of Hippocrates.

McGill Plays Host to IRC Next Year

The Regional conference of New England International Relations Clubs will take place at McGill next year, probably in December, announced Paul Ollivier, President of the McGill International Relations Club, yesterday.

Ollivier, who has just returned from the I.R.C. Conference of the New England region in New Hampshire, stated that this meant that McGill would be the host of more than 150 American students representing at least 40 universities next year.

"For many of these students," he added, "it will be their first visit to Montreal, and we hope that all McGill students will realize the importance of this event, and will co-operate in making this Conference a real success."

The purpose of the Conference is to encourage a greater interchange of ideas and activities between students in the field of international affairs. Resolutions are drawn up which are later submitted at the National Conference of International Relations Clubs.

French Society Holds Christmas Reveillon

A Christmas dance in the style of the Reveillon will be sponsored by La Societe Francaise on Wednesday, Dec. 14.

The Societe has been able to obtain the Mellow-Airs orchestra. Among the other entertainers will be Les Maillurons et Ouaourons, the French folk-dancers who performed here last year. In addition to their own performance Les Maillurons et Ouaourons will introduce McGill students to the art of the dance.

La Societe hopes to include among the artists, Maurice Chevalier, who previously entertained at the Moulin Rouge in Paris.

Science Now Dominates Man's Life

The inability of science to teach man to use his knowledge to his own advantage is the most important reason why religion must have a prominent place in the direction of man's life. This was the thesis of a talk on "Religion and Science," given by Dr. J. S. Thomson, Dean of the Faculty of Divinity, at Hillier House yesterday. The Dean's talk was the third of the current "Meet the Faculty" Series.

Science, according to Dr. Thomson, has advanced so rapidly from the days of Copernicus to our own, that it has come to dominate men's lives. Culminating in the magnificence of scientific invention—atomic energy, man's scientific curiosity led him from one discovery to another, until he has finally reached the point that continued existence demands prudence and care in the use of scientific technology.

At present, religion is the only force in the world that has behind it the necessary moral authority with which to break the dominance of uncontrolled science in our contemporary world. "There must be a marriage between science and religion," he said. "Otherwise, there will be no mollifying force over the use of scientific technology, the results of which would be disastrous to our civilization, as the after effects of atomic energy used in the last war have shown."

Art Leznoff was in the chair and the speaker was thanked by Rabbi Samuel Cass.

China Expert To Address Labour Club

Former United Church missionary to China, Dr. James G. Endicott will address the Student Labour Club Thursday, December 8th at 5.00 p.m. in the Union Ballroom.

The guest speaker has spent more than twenty years in China and speaks the language fluently. It is generally admitted by foreign observers that Dr. Endicott has come to be regarded as the eminent living Canadian authority on China today.

Until a few years ago Dr. Endicott held the post of personal advisor to Chiang Kai-shek, leader of Nationalist China. However, finding that Chiang's policy was, in his opinion, leading to the degeneration rather than the rehabilitation of conditions in China, he resigned his position.

Returning from China, he resigned from the ministry, and conducted a national tour of Canada speaking on the Chinese situation as he had recently observed it.

Dr. Endicott has predicted the present trend of events in China as inevitable in view of Chiang Kai-shek's domestic policy. He is active in the Canadian Peace Congress which has established councils all over the country in an effort to lay a firm foundation for world peace.

At present Dr. Endicott is editor of "The Far Eastern News Letter," a publication designed to promote better understanding between the Western World and the Asiatic countries.

First Athletics Night Features Chorus Line

A chorus line of 25 co-eds and a dance to the Westernaires Orchestra will be two main events in Saturday's Athletic Night.

The chorus line under the direction of Sheila Boland, former Red and White Revue dancers, includes Gay Elkington, last year's runner-up in the Carnival Queen contest, Year's Eve Queen. With a new routine this year, the chorus line will be dressed in McGill blazers and white shorts, and are to be called The Cheerleaderettes.

Carson and Palmer Elected To Women's Union Posts

Forty-nine percent of those eligible voted seven faculty representatives to the SEC into office at yesterday's regular mid-term elections. At the same time 51 per cent of the women students came out to vote for two members of the Women's Union executive.

The following representatives to the S. E. C. were elected: Doug Campbell and Perry Black from Arts and Sciences; Julien Hutchinson from Commerce; David MacKenzie from Law; Gord Bryson from Architecture; Alice Mills from Physical Education; Archie Etienne from Music and Divinity. Also elected was Pat Carson as vice-president of the Women's Union and Lynda Palmer as member-at-large from the Women's Union from second and third year.

The representatives from Engineering, Medicine and Dentistry were elected earlier by acclamation. They are Boris Gardovsky, Isidore Rosenfeld and Gordon Young respectively.

No Majorities

In no contest where more than two candidates were running did the winners receive an absolute majority. Pat Carson vice-president-elect of the Women's Union came closest to winning a majority when she polled 49.5 per cent of the votes cast. In the other three-cornered contest David MacKenzie was elected as representative from the faculty of Law 39 per cent of the votes cast in that faculty.

In the faculty of Arts and Sciences where seven candidates vied for two positions on the S. E. C. less than 20 per cent of the vote was necessary to give the victors a decisive victory over their opponents. There were 1999 votes cast compared with 4548 possible votes — two per student — in the faculty. That is, 44 per cent of the total possible votes were cast in the faculty of Arts and Sciences.

Women Come To Mt. Allison What Next?

Sackville, N.S., (CUP) — Plooding our way along in the dinner line last Sunday, as boys of Mount Allison were surprised by a shuddering halt in the proceedings.

"Holy Smoke!" came a startled voice, "women."

We rubbed the old Sunday morning "ziz" out of our eyes and there they were, marching in their best bibs and tuckers on the arms of fellows.

Wild cries came from tables of slack jaws and popping eye-balls. "Who?" "What?" "Why?"

The news gradually seeped around that it was "those Juniors" seizing an opportunity to show off their women ("Well, I don't see what they've got to boast about—now you take our women") so that the Sophomore boys could go over the way and see how the other half lives ("Phew, send us some men").

Examination of the facts show that by exchanging some 50-odd girls (and note the hyphen, chum) with some 50-odd Sophomore boys (hyphen here too), the Sophomores were able to round off their church parade by having dinner and singing carols together while the Juniors were able to sing carols, have dinner and proceed to a play practice together. This was thought to be a fine effort on both sides of the road and more such get-togethers are eagerly looked forward to by all.

Grill Room Does Not Make Excessive Profits—Gardavsky

"Exorbitant profits are not being made in the Grill Room," Boris Gardavsky, Vice-President of the McGill Union, said, in his financial release to the Students' Society and McGill Daily last night. Also released were details of rentals in the McGill Union for clubs and societies that hold smokers, banquets, and dances.

For the month of October, the Grill room and Cafeteria profits to the McGill Union were less than 1.6 per cent of the gross sales, after overhead expenses had been deducted. In commenting on this, Boris said that this percentage was very small as profit in business is usually about 3 per cent.

The cafeteria and grill room, however, show improvement over last year. The average loss for 1948-49 was $270 per month. This year, an average profit of a little over $100 per month is expected, for the seven month period of operation.

"Reports that we are trying to repay the capital expense of the new grill room in one year are false," said Gardavsky. "We will

THE FINANCIAL POSITION

Last night the chairman of the Finance Committee presented another report on the financial position of the Students Society. This report, like others The Daily has carried, emphasizes that the bottom of the barrel has been reached.

The Finance Committee deserves the highest praise for the work it has done in the face of almost impossible conditions. Everyone wants money which simply does not exist. The point has now been reached where drastic measures are necessary. The only way to prevent an extensive reduction in activities — and no one seems anxious to cut out any of the major activities — is to raise the Students Society fee.

The preamble to the detailed financial report presented by Harold Corrigan, chairman of the Finance Committee, was as follows:

"The financial position of the Students Executive Council at this time is precarious. Approved expenditures amount to $90,200 with estimated revenue of $97,600. There is only an 8.1 percent margin of safety between these two figures. In the year 1948-49 there was a 6.7 percent margin of safety and the council had to reduce the surplus account by $4,500 to balance expenditures with revenue.

The surplus has been reduced to $12,899 and this is a bare minimum necessary to carry on normal operations. Unless some drastic action is taken by the S. E. C. and the presidents or chairmen of the committees of the S. E. C. which carry out the activities, there is a great possibility that the loss on the year's operations may be as high as $11,000.

"If this were the case it would wipe out the surplus but for a few hundred dollars and there is the possibility of the university authorities assuming control of the Students Society. The most serious point concerning this situation is that current revenue may not equal or exceed current expenditures. This is a policy, or situation, which is basically wrong morally and economically.

"There must be a very close check kept on the organizations financially controlled by the S. E. C. Every effort must be made on the part of the council and the chairmen or presidents of these organizations to reduce expenditures, and to ensure that the students in their organizations do likewise.

"It is the opinion of the Finance Committee that unless the Junior Prom and the Red and White Revue cover expenditures by revenue, there is insufficient interest on the campus to carry on the excessive financial burden of these organizations.

The committee also recommends and states that for the proper maintenance of student activities next year the Student Society fee must be raised to $15. The incoming Finance Committee should investigate the necessary rise in fees if every student is to receive an Annual.

"At the present time the Dawson College Students-Council deficit is $3,481 and satisfactory arrangements have been made for the liquidation of this debt. The success or failure of the scheme, however, rests with the value received on the disposal of their fixed assets."

Letters to the Editor

CONGRATULATIONS AND THANKS

Editor, The Daily:

Permit me through your columns, to offer my congratulations to the members of the Radio Workshop for the fine programme of poems that they put over station last Sunday. The selection, the reading and the reading of the poems were very good, and compared favorably with other similar programmes that I have heard over our Canadian stations. May I, however, draw their attention to what, to my mind, tended somewhat to detract from the standard of the programme, that is the abruptness of its termination. I would suggest that in any future programme of a similar nature, they try a better "fade-away," if that is the correct term; something that would correspond to the introduction, and be just as effective.

George W. Bancroft.

Assurance

Editor, The Daily:

I should like to express my gratitude to all those who supported me in the S.E.C. election held on Wednesday and to give my assurance that I shall do my utmost to fulfill my obligations in the honour bestowed upon me.

Archie Etienne.

For Success

Editor, The Daily:

I should like to express my gratitude to all those who helped to make the Junior Prom a Success. Special thanks go to the dance committee, the ticket sellers, and to all those who helped put up the decorations.

George Piper.

Best Wishes

Editor, The Daily:

I wish to take this opportunity to thank all those who nominated and voted for me in yesterday's election. May I also congratulate Mr. Etienne and wish him every success in his new post.

Jacob Siskind.

Thanks

Editor, The Daily:

I wish to thank all those who nominated and supported me in the past election. I hope they will be as firm in their support of the new S.E.C. members.

Emily C. Hick.

The Trust

Editor, The Daily:

If I may, I would like to take the opportunity through the medium of The McGill Daily to thank all those who supported me for the position of engineering representative on the Executive Council.

Although I would have preferred to have an opponent running against me, yet my election by acclamation has saved me a great amount of time and energy, time and energy which I have been able to put directly into the job at hand instead.

In closing, I would finally like to say that I shall do my best to fulfill the trust and responsibility which the McGill engineers have given me.

Boris Gardavsky.

Latent Spirit

Editor, The Daily:

I wish to express my thanks to all those who elected me to the position of Arts and Science representative to the SEC. I shall endeavour to carry out the responsibilities, which have come to me with this election, to the best of my ability.

Aside from the formalities of the balloting, the large number of students that turned out to vote and the terrific interest taken in the campaigns, shows a good deal of latent McGill spirit which really came to the fore.

Let's hope that in future elections a similar display of enthusiasm will take place. My congratulations to Perry Black on winning the other seat.

Doug Campbell.

Social Disease

The Doctor And the Pachyderm

A Short Story
By Katherine Paterson

By K. PATTERSON

Mrs. Slate banged the door of her car behind her and walked quickly up the path, looking sharply at her watch as she did so. If the meeting were over in half an hour, she would just have time for nine holes of golf before the Ritchies' cocktail party, she decided. The matron of the Convalescent Home held the screen-door open for her and said, "Good morning, rather timidly as she went in. A tiresome woman, thought Mrs. Slate, returning the greeting coldly. She was a good nurse, but much too nervous for a job like this. Pausing in the hall, Mrs. Slate looked about her, noticing that a rail was missing from the wall. Really, the building was dilapidated. The rich American who had built it 27 years ago for the benefit of convalescents from the slums of Montreal had not foreseen that the committee of women would be unable to stretch his money to meet all necessary repairs.

Mrs. Slate shrugged her shoulders impatiently and went into the Board-room, where half a dozen women were already discussing, in stage whispers, the behavior of the younger generation. Mrs. Newton beckoned to her from across the room and said in her nasal drawl: "Kay, my dear, come and sit here. Did you know that 86 patients came down on Tuesday? It is wonderful for them all to be able to get out of that dreadful heat."

"Hmmm," responded Mrs. Slate, her eyes half closed. She had a great many things to do before her dinner party, she thought, checking mentally. Cocktails at the Ritchies'. . . Lunch at the Durnfords. . . An appointment at the hairdresser's at 3 o'clock. . .

Beside her Mrs. Newton was saying: "I simply don't know what to do with Maximilian. He chewed a hole in my knitting today, but he looked so sad when I spanked him. I really do think dogs have character, don't you, Kay?"

Yes, she supposed they had, replied Mrs. Slate absently, and remembered the first day she had met Agnes Newton on the village street, and how Maximilian had wound his lash quite successfully around her ankles, just when she was trying to catch up with Billy Townsend to ask him to play bridge that night.

The matron and the doctor came into the Board-room and took their places beside the president. "Will the meeting please come to order," said the president; and Mrs. Slate smiled as Mrs. Scott reluctantly curtailed a description of her son's victory in the tennis finals.

"We will open the meeting with a prayer," said the president. Really, objected Mrs. Slate silently. This is no unnecessary. Nothing could be more ridiculous than a committee of middle-aged women getting down on their knees on the finest golfing morning in July and asking the Lord to "guide them in to the ways of peace." She glanced scornfully at the shapeless woman on her right burying her face reverently in her pudgy hands. Ella

Henry had no charm, no beauty, and no executive ability, but she was on every committee because of her bank account and her Christian generosity.

"And now, if Miss Ryan will give her report. . . Mrs. Slate lit a cigarette and looked about the room. It was, she thought, most disgracefully dreary, and no attempt had been made to improve it. The yellow wall paper was an ugly, dull shade and the sofa and chairs were straight-backed and uncomfortable. And as for the pictures of the two St. Bernard dogs gazing mournfully out of their heavy oval frames. . . Mrs. Slate turned away in disgust.

Miss Ryan finished her report, and the doctor, shuffling a few papers on the table before him, was preparing to speak. Mrs. Slate examined him critically. He was a young man, a thorough doctor, so they said, still full of energetic plans and enthusiastic ideas. He was speaking rapidly now, leaning forward and trying eagerly to impress one of his ideas on the women before him. Mrs. Slate watched him, slightly amused. His efforts were so obviously useless. The women on the committee were good souls, for the most part mothers with growing children, anxious to do their share in helping "the less privileged classes," but they were women who viewed situations rather fuzzily through their good-natured benevolence. None of them, thought Mrs. Slate, were as clever as she. Nor active. Few women had the capabilities or the money to rival her as a hostess. And she was also unbeatable in sports and in organizational work.

Across Mrs. Scott's proud thoughts of her boy's success in tennis, and Mrs. Newton fond contemplation of Maximilian's character, the doctor's words came to Mrs. Slate. He seemed to be trying to penetrate these obstacles and make the committee see only the situation which he was describing. Mrs. Slate turned her attention to him.

" . . . This man is suffering from Parkinson's Disease, a nervous disease, brought on, in this case, by the shock of two bad accidents. It causes the patient to shake continuously and to have fits of a peculiar nature during which he runs without being able to stop, and without being able to control his direction. The patient is incapable of dressing himself, of lighting a cigarette, or of cutting up his own food." The doctor put down his papers and looked around the room. "This man," he continued, "is living in one of the worst tenements in the city of Montreal. He has no money. He has no relatives. He shares a room with . . .

That doctor, thought Mrs. Slate grimly, will have to learn that if he wants to reform the world, he won't have time to stop for every individual who happens to be sick.

The clock on the wall above the doctor's head struck eleven. Unless somebody came to a decision immediately, the meeting would certainly go on for another half hour. Already the shocked ejaculations had begun. "Oh, how terrible." "But I didn't know people still lived that way." "Can't anything be done?" Mrs. Slate was thinking. Where had she heard of Parkinson's Disease before? Why, of course, Tom Miller. . .

"The man can be cured," said Mrs. Slate, raising her voice above the fluttering exclamations. There was a moment's startled silence. Then: "Cured? But how do you know?" "Are you sure, Kay?"

"Of course I'm sure," said Mrs. Slate impatiently. "A very good friend of mine suffered from Parkinson's Disease and was treated by a specialist in New York. He's perfectly well now." Little cries of relief went round the room. "I knew it couldn't be as hopeless as it sounded. . ."

Mrs. Slate stood up and straightened her suit jacket. "If there's no further business, I move that the meeting be adjourned," she said firmly.

The doctor was standing by the door as she went out of the Board-room. She drew him into the hall and pointed out the missing rail in the banisters and the crumbling plaster. If he would have it seen to, she would send him a check for the repairs. She added as an after-thought, "An impressive report, doctor. You speak well." Then she stepped past him and pushed open the screen-door before he had time to answer.

Outside she paused for a moment, lit a State Express, and breathed a sigh of satisfaction. There was still time for nine holes of golf, she thought, as she walked down the path towards her car.

Fighting Redmen Defeat Windsors in MBL Thriller

Intramural Volleyball

The first game in yesterday's intramural volleyball play matched the Xakis Eng. team with the Med. 2 "A's" who played with only five men, and despite their speedy play, went down to a close 15-8, 15-12 defeat. Crawford and Fortier were outstanding for the losers while the spiking of tall Mortowski was of great help to the Engineers.

After piling up a long lead early in the first game, Alpha and Beta lost out to Phys. Ed 3 who beat down the stubborn Arts and Science team by identical 15-9 scores.

In the third game, the Golden Green Eng., led by the smoothly set up net play of Phoca beat the Comm. 4 team 15-15 and 15-8. Behind by nine points in the first game, the Commerce team tied up the first game at 11-11, only to lose out 15-13. H.B.

MOE AND HIS BOYS FLASH FIRST VICTORY SMILES

Senior Cagers Cop First Game 50-46

By LEN WISSE

There is an old maxim in sport which says that a team that won't be beaten can't be beaten. This was never more conclusively proven than last night at the Currie Gym when the Senior cagers pulled a most startling upset as they dumped the highly favored Windsors 50-46, in the first game of a regular Montreal Basketball League twinbill.

This McGill team was not the same squad that had gone down to two defeats in their previous MBL games nor did it even vaguely resemble the Redmen who were walloped twice during the week-end by St. Lawrence and Clarkson. They were fighting every inch of the way as they repeatedly came from behind and finally with three minutes to play in the game jumped into the lead and hung on doggedly 'till the final whistle. Last night they were not to be denied victory as they played inspired basketball.

In the hard-fought contest the fighting Redmen drew first blood as Sheldon Merling, who played a terrific game, sank a tap in shot from under the basket. Lud Bock then scored a foul shot for the losers' first point of the game. The latter then assumed a 9-4 lead after five minutes but the Redmen came roaring back to take a 12-11 lead after 11 minutes. From there until the half, play was evenly divided and the Windsors led 20-24 at the intermission.

Early in the second session, the Red and White had trouble getting started and the Green and Gold forged into a 33-27 lead after seven minutes. At this point McGillian Myer Bloom left the game with five fouls.

Again however the Reds came fighting back in the close checking game and drove to within three markers of the Windsors with six minutes remaining.

Redmen Come Through
Here the Redmen came through and with their driving attack seized the lead at 46-45 when Bud Fraser sank a tap in from a scramble under the basket. Don Finlayson then made it 47-45 when he scored a free throw. Merling also added a free shot and then added a field goal before Dave Greenburg of the losers completed the scoring at 50-46. The man who sent the Redmen on their way was Smiley Wilson who, with the squad down 45-42, drove in under the basket and sank a picture layout shot.

The locals hung on for the last few minutes to cop the verdict.

Though the cohesive team play was responsible for the McGill win, several men were brilliant. Sheldon Merling was the high scorer for the Redmen with 16 points and played a brilliant game but 64 (Continued on Page 4.)

Water Poloists Tackle MAAA At Legion Pool

Tonight at the Legion Pool, the McGill Waterpolo Squad faces M.A.A.A. aggregation in a C. A. P. A. fixture scheduled to start at 8:15. This is the last game before the Intercollegiate Championship which will be played in Toronto on Saturday.

Perhaps tonight's game will serve to put the boys in shape and keep them from folding in the second half of Saturday's game. Second half fatigue has been a deciding factor in all previous encounters and if the boys can tone up they may be able to overcome the four point deficit incurred in last Saturday's game at the Legion Pool.

Thursday's game will see Ballou in the nets with the ever dependable defence of Corrigan and Dickstein.

Onesti and Walter, regulars playing out, may both be on the sidelines with a cold and strained shoulder respectively. Walter may also miss Saturday's tilt which will leave a serious gap in the lineup, both games.

Cooper will have his work cut out for him playing his usual steady game at half. The forwards will be MacDonald, Walt Tilden, and Jim Ross. Cottle will sub on defence and Adelson will help out the forwards. This game may be the last C. A. P. A. match for the McGill squad.

Commerce '4' Tops Blitzers By 14-1 Score

Four games were played in the Intramural floor hockey league yesterday as the schedule reached the half way mark.

The Commerce 4 and the Blitzers played the first game with the Comm. squad coming out on top 14-1. The Blitzers, who dressed only eight men were outclassed on the offensive as well as the defensive play as the Commerce 4 went wild with goals.

Oddly, it was the Blitzers who accounted for the first goal with Lloyd getting the credit. The Comm. squad came back fast and tied it up with Vallierie getting the marker. They continued to put on the pressure and by the end of the first period the Commerce men were ahead 4-1.

The tired and disorganized Blitzers failed to hold the winners in the second and third periods as ten goals were scored on Seager, Blitzers goalie. Every Commerce man figured on the scoring sheet with Henderson, Villieries, McCarty, Jones and Chesick each notching singles.

In the other games played, the Bearcats downed the Ferricnades by a 6-1 score. Harvey was top scorer for the Bearcats with two goals. Glenerson came across with the only Engineer tally.

In the following match, the Odds and Sods made it three in succession by downing the Walloppers 6-1.

Fisher and Krutzy came through for the victors with a pair apiece while Currie and Filiatrault accounted for the other markers. The Walloppers' tally came from the stick of Kingman.

Hockey Squad Drops 8-6 Tilt to Gaels in Kingston

Marshall Nets Two Goals In Loss

By JIM ROBB

McGill's hockey Redmen lost their third straight game last night in Kingston, going down to an 8-6 defeat before the Queen's Golden Gaels. It was the first win in as many starts for Coach Gene Chouinard's tri-color crew, and the first victory for the team since the 47-48 season.

McGill had a decided edge in play in the first period, but from then on Queen's took command. Queen's little goalie Norm Urie was brilliant in the final frame. The second period was McGill's worst. The Redmen could not get an attack started they had only four shots on goal.

Dave Campbell's boys broke in to an early lead with Bob Russell scoring the first goal after only a minute and five seconds of play. O'Neill followed to put the puck behind Urie on a pass from Marshall to give McGill a two nothing head start.

Star Ross McKelvey came back with two goals for the Gaels before the end of the frame. While McGill matched their attack with counters off the sticks of Marshall and Irving.

Goals by Kemp, Murray, and Hews put the Gaels into a five-four lead in the middle stanza. Big Bob Marshall came back for the Campbell Clan with his second goal of the night to tie the score and end the second period with the game all tied up.

GAELS SCORE THREE
Three more goals in the third period was the margin of victory for the Chouinard group. Sly, Puro, one of the Queen's football stars and Murray's second goal put the game away for the Gaels. Queen's goalie Norm Urie held off the few McGill rushes in this frame. Old Reliable Sandy Sanderson was the only Redman to score.

Footballer Ross McKelvey and last year's star Don Murray led the Gaels with two goals each. Ron Kemp was also in a standout role for Coach Gene Chouinard. Back on the defence line Len Robertson a newcomer to the tri-colour was the leading light.

The win was a complete upset. Queen's had lost several of last season's squad to the examiners of the University. And up to game time smiling Gene Chouinard was in anything but his usual good humor. However the display of his Golden Gaels in the third period put him up in the clouds and incidentally into second place in the Intercollegiate hockey loop standings, two points ahead of McGill and two behind U. of M.

High scorer in the high scoring game for the McGill Redmen was firstline centre Bob Marshall. The big boy came through with two goals and an assist. Rookie Bob Russell up with the Seniors for the first time this season scored with one goal and a good all around performance.

Harry Irving came through with a promising game and the veteran Sandy Sanderson played his usual heads up affair steady on the defence and scoring one goal in the last third period.

by 37 points in the Track and Field competition, as well as holding down top spot in the Basketball league with 140 points.

The Engineers tied with the third place faculty in the Volleyball play, with each squad garnering 95.

The faculties of Commerce and Dentistry each copped top laurels in one section, with the former winning the Golf championships with 83 counters, and the Dents topping the softball league by a margin of 15 markers over the runner up Commerce aggregation.

POINT SYSTEM

The point system used in the intramural sports setup, which has been vastly changed from previous years, allows each faculty one point for every player entered in each sport. There are also five markers awarded to a squad, every time they show up for, and play in a scheduled contest.

On the other hand, any faculty which fails to dress a team for any game, or for any other reason defaults a contest is penalized thirty points, six times the bonus given for playing the tilt.

For every event won by any entry, five points are added to the faculty total. Fifty points are awarded to every team winning a championship while the runners-up are given twenty-five markers.

The faculty of Medicine took a thirty-five point lead over the runner-up Arts and Science crew, in the first term results of the Intramural point competition released last night by Howie Ryan's office.

The Phys Eds and Engineers also placed well up in the standings, grabbing the third and fourth positions respectively. All other faculties were well behind the big four.

The Meds made their strongest showing in Touch Football, a new intramural sport at McGill, compiling a total of 283 points, compared with 130 for the Phys Eds, their closest rivals in the Touch ball wars. This 283 point total was the largest compiled by any faculty in any of the Intramural sports.

The Arts and Science aggregation were top point getters in three of the nine sections, grabbing the lead in Tennis with 171 points and in floor hockey, with a total of 70. They also outswam all other faculties to take the water laurels with 100 markers.

The show crew, McGill's Physical Education faculty, snatched top honours in two fields and tied with the Engineers in a third. They topped their nearest rivals, the Arts and Science representatives,

IRC Meet at Washington DC Discuss U.S. in World Politics

Toronto, Ont., — (CUP) — The University of Toronto was represented by nine delegates at the Middle Atlantic Conference of International Relations Clubs, which was held at Georgetown University, Washington, D.C., recently.

The main discussion dealt with the place of the United States in world politics.

Split Into Round Tables
The conference was split into five round tables on U.S. relations with Europe, U.N., the American continent, the Middle East and the Far East. Highlights of the conference were addresses by Dr. Alberto Leras, Secretary - General of the Organization of American States (Pan American Union), Mr. John Martini Cates, of the State Department who spoke on the U.S. and the United Nations and a short talk on diplomacy by Sir Oliver Franks, British Ambassador to the U.S., at a tea given for the conference at the British Embassy.

Other Canadian delegations were present from McMaster, University of Montreal, and Marianopolis College, Montreal.

The University of Montreal put in a bid for next years conference. This will be the first time it will be held in Canada and it is hoped that this will bring a greater appreciation of Canada's place in North America.

A paper entitled: "Canada — United States' Best Customer," was presented by George Slater, one of the Toronto representatives.

The speech pointed out the importance of Canada to the United States for security and economic reason. The inconsistencies in American policy on multi-lateral trade and the utility of action without the concurrence of the U.S. were developed with reference to recent Canadian statements on foreign policy. Other delegates, presented the Canadian viewpoint in the groups on the U.N. Europe and the Middle East.

There was general realization that the present world trade was unbalanced and the opinion of the students favored economic and political integration of Europe as a solution. A minority pointed out the difficulties in the path of such integration but the majority felt that it was essential and must be accomplished.

Western Aid Opposes Russia
The problem of relations between East and West boiled down to aiding the Western countries to remain democratic and thus opposing the expansion of Russia.

The discussion of international relations did not take up the whole time. The Canadian group was invited to the Canadian Embassy and met the Ambassador, Hume Wrong. The next afternoon most of the students visited the National Art Gallery where the Vienna Collection is on display including the Cellini salt cellar fashioned out of eight pounds of gold.

Have British Ambassador
The week-end ended on a high note with a visit to the British

Arts and Science Jottings

By FRED GOTTHEIL

The Arts and Science at long last have a weekly column in The Daily. These following lines mark its debut, so as a token of appreciation please don't turn the page now or listen to your lecture but read on, sport, read on.

New Year's Eve Party
Once again, the Arts and Science Undergraduate Society has a New Year's Eve Party planned for their student body.

The party, which will be held at the Union Building, promises to be as successful as their previous ones. Jim Cartier, who is in charge of the affair, stated that the number of tickets were limited but gave the Arts and Science students first crack at the lot by allowing only members of the A.S.U. to buy tickets this week.

It is a semi-formal affair, the women wearing gowns while the men may dress optional. Admission is four dollars a couple, tickets on sale at the Tuck shop.

The popular Westernaire Orchestra, whose rhythm boys sounded out the music for last year's affair, will again be on the band-stand.

Elaborate decorations are, being planned by Don Wallace, who is in charge of the decoration committee and has originality on giving the Union "the new look."

The Arts and Science Queen will be chosen during the affair by reliable judges appointed by the committee. All females are eligible to try for the coveted crown which will be presented to the Queen by Dick Messier, president of the A.S.U.

Gen. Report
Keith Eddy, in charge of the Educational committee of the A.S.U. announced that because of the poor response given to previous Gen. nights, the hopes for a future session is doubtful. The committee although, has contacted some 30 or 40 colleges in Canada, U.S.A. and England, asking for Embassy for tea and discussion of the problems of diplomacy by the dean of British Ambassadors, Sir Oliver Franks. He said there was no mystery about diplomacy and that the hardest thing to agree about were the facts.

French Canadian Attitude Is Subject of Toronto Club Talk

Toronto, Ont., (CUP) — "The question of the French Canadian language, economic insecurity, and attitude is the keynote in the anxiety of French Canadians for the survival of their culture," said professor Saunders when he spoke to the Modern History Club of Toronto University recently.

This matter is a problem only in the minds of certain minority rather a question of relationships and as such has been a fundamental issue in Canadian history, he said. Professor Saunders reminded his audience that French Canada makes up a distinctive cultural unit and that the motto of Quebec, "Je me souviens," is the key to the desire of the French Canadian to preserve that culture.

This anxiety, the necessity of learning how to survive, is the heart of the matter, and leads in certain cases to a tendency to nurse wrongs, to face backwards, the speaker pointed out. However the reaction among those who have studied the question most deeply is to employ tradition to further a point of view more concerned with the future. Professor Saunders emphasized aspects of the French Canadian outlook which English speaking Canadians must appreciate. They are question of the French Canadian language, economic insecurity, and religion.

Language, he said, is not a mere external. It is the essence of a way of life. In that regard, the speaker mentioned that the French spoken well in Canada is good French, although it is not always Parisian French. French speaking Canadians are on the defense because they are a minority, not only in Canada, but on the North American continent as well. The French Canadians are a devout people, Mr. Saunders observed, both in belief and in practice. The question of education is closely allied with that of religion, and if it comes to a choice, they prefer to sacrifice technological achievements to the maintenance of a spiritual foundation, he stated.

The French Canadians wish to survive as equals, and English Canadians must exercise sympathy and good-will to bridge the gap between the two cultures. It is up to English Canadians to go more than half way because they are the majority.

Canadians must recognize that "this country is necessarily founded on a dual culture."

center Bud Fraser played the game of his life. He played a tremendous game under the basket scored 11 points and was the outstanding Redman on the floor. Don Finlayson with 7 turned in a terrific performance and played a tireless two way game, while steady Myer Bloom played well.

For the Windsors, Strulovitch, Greenburg, Weisberg, Davidson and Bock were outstanding.
